

about

Whether on her bike, on a trip, on the town or on the job, native Houstonian Kristen Kleis keeps her eyes open for new ideas and fresh inspiration for her clients.

She has a love of photography and a passion for typography, and constantly calls on a variety of influences to create just the right communications solutions for her clients, executed in traditional and new media.

Before founding Kleis Design in 2008, she worked for several graphic design firms, anchoring her reputation with clients as an experienced graphics designer who provides the highest level of creative services and project management. As a result, in the last 12 years, she has cultivated a strong client base — all developed strictly through referrals and word of mouth. They call on her again and again because her ideas directly impact their, success and improve their profitability and bottom line.

But don't think she's all business: her favorite thing is meeting new people, listening to their stories and learning from their experiences. Her enthusiasm, and her laugh, are well-known by people all over Houston.

Kris is a 1998 graduate of the Art Institute of Houston, earning a degree in Commercial Art and Visual Communication. Her work has been repeatedly cited for excellence within the design industry and she has won numerous awards from her peers in the communication field.
